What Prominent Citizens Think of His Plan of

The Wish for a Representative Government Strongly Expressed.

The bill proposed by Gen. Resecrans, representative from California, for the governmunt of the District of Columbia by "popular voice," has created much comment among the citizens of this city. The bill provides for the election of two of the commissioners by voice and the appointment of the third commissioner by the President. It is proposed that the election shall be by a new and nevel plan, which renders illegal registration and voting impossible. It also provides to do away with polling places and the attendant rioting and contusion.

Interviews were had with a number of merchants and others yesterday by Republican Foresters in reference to the proposition of Gen. Roserans. The discovery was made that nearly all of the business people who hitherto had opposed suffrage favored the proposed p an. Mr. J. Karr, jeweler, 629 Pennsylvania avenue, said: "The proble of the district should enjoy the right of electing their officers just the same as people of other cities do. The government, of course, should have one representative on the board of commissioners. I favor the proposed buil."

Conference of a Committee With Commissioner Edmunds.

Yesterday a committee, consisting of Messrs. John B. Wilson, Josiah V. Grant, and Adolph Miller, late members of the Metropolitan police force, were at the capitol yes-terday to urge upon the district committees an amendment to the bill to pension disabled policemen and firemen injured in the line of duty either from wounds or sickness. Both the committees of the house and the senate received the ex-policemen most kindly, and in reply to the representations of Mr. Wilson, who acted as spokesman, they oxpressed their sense of the fairness and justice of their propositions.

But there was one thing that arose during the conference which caused some surprise, and that was that Commissioner Edmonds had written a letter to the committee of the sense company the appli-committee of the senate opposing the applieation of blind Phil, Thompson for a pension. nd of any other member of the force hitherto uischarged.

Mr. Wilson and his associates then called upon Commissioner Edmonds to ascertain why he should have written such a letter, and what disposition he proposed to make of the fund of $22,000 formed for the benefit of the policemen, and which had never been used for their benefit. Mr. Edmonds declined to discuss the disposition of the fund. He then said, in reply to the arguments of Mr. Wilson, that he would consent to call together his associate commissioners to consider the matter of retroactive pension, and whatever the determination might be would at once be transmitted to the congressional committees on the district.

As the little girl is only 12 years old, the appreciative criticism given by the Baltimore press is gratifying to her friends, and especially to her teacher, Prof. Kasapar. The American of that city says: "Birdie Lucas, a child of 12 years, played Singelee's violin solu, "Fantausle l'Euchautresse.' She handled the bow with great ease and grace, and played every note clearly and distinctly. The various parts of the expressive theme were delicately wrought out, and the technical difficulties carefully and skillfully con-

The Day says: "The audience could not but feel interested in the performance of little Birdie Lucas, who played, with a skill remarkable for one so young, Singelee's violin fantasis of 'L'Enchantresse.' In an encore she played some pretty variations on the 'Carnival of Venice.'
